1. In the middle of July 1951 Soviet soldiers and Hungarian officers inspected dwellings in Mohács which might serve as quarters for troops. In this connection, it is observed that Soviet troops are now serving with the AVH as guards along the Hungarian-Yugoslav border south and west of Mohács; the number of Russians is uncertain, since the Hungarian uniforms are now so similar to Soviet uniforms.
2. An AVH inspector at Komárom alleges that 28,000 Russian troops are stationed in that city. They occupy four large barracks, including the Monostor Barracks, which was used as an underground ammunition dump in 1945 and 1946, and was reoccupied by the Soviet Army in the spring of 1951.
3. A tent camp has been erected since May 1951 south of Tolna (N 10), on the west bank of the Danube just north of the Sio canal.
